

1. If the IPML course schedule is conflicted with course schedule at my home university, will the courses be recorded and can I review the course recording?

IPML requires online students to attend the courses in-person in real time (that is, you must attend the course at the same time that the students in Beijing attend the course). Any occasional absence from a course or requirement for reviewing the course recording, should be approved by the instructor in advance.

2. If I have only completed one course of the IPML, can I receive the program certificate?

Only students who have successfully attend the summer camp can receive the program certificate. Students who complete each course will receive an official PKU transcript.

A certain number of full scholarships to attend this summer camp will be provided for high achieving students who have successfully taken the two online courses, or have taken one of the two courses but have strong background in machine learning.

3. I have not taken the 2022 fall semester course, can I apply for 2023 spring course?

For those students who have not taken the first semester course in 2022 Fall, they can still apply for the second semester course in 2023 Spring, but they should have strong background in machine learning.
